

It rained, it blew and it was cold Saturday during the Eagles/Imperial Chamber of Commerce Easter Egg Hunt. Originally scheduled for April 4, it had been moved because of a snowstorm. Those who ran to pick up eggs stuffed and "laid" by the Eagles Club included, at left, Carter Leibbrandt of Imperial in his heavy rubber boots; and John Vogt of Imperial and son Kaden, 2, below right, in his camouflage gear.
