

Chase County was well represented at the Nebraska State Fair in Grand Island the past two weeks. The Chase County Tourism Committee won a space in the FFA/4-H Building through an essay contest. Volunteers manned the booth the length of the fair, passing out information, answering questions and promoting Chase County as a place to vacation, work and live. During this past weekend Janet Sheaffer, left, Marlea Thompson and Carolyn Lee, not pictured, met many fairgoers. (Republican photo)
