

The annual trenchball tournament before the Christmas break is a long-standing tradition at the high school. The choices for team wear can be just as entertaining as the competition itself, as shown by the junior boys above. While their artful dressing had no impact on the outcome, it was the junior boys who prevailed in the double elimination tournament that also included a team of faculty and administration staff. (Photos by Emily Johnston)