

Jodie Schuller, with the help of several of her high school players and one former player, put on a fundamental skills volleyball camp Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday this week for girls in grades second through sixth. They worked on jumping, hitting and passing skills among other areas of the sport, with split sessions for the younger and older participants. At left, fourth grader Jordan Jablonski works on her hitting skills Tuesday with Shelby Jaeger, who will be a senior transfer student this fall. Schuller, below, head volleyball coach at Chase County Schools, said 18 to 20 girls took part in the sessions. (Republican photos)
