

University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension's Wheat Technology Conference 2013 will be held in one location, Sidney, instead of three sites as originally planned.

The Sidney workshop is scheduled for Feb. 7 at the Holiday Inn, 664 Chase Blvd. Due to lack of sufficient registrations, workshops planned for Alliance and Ogallala have been cancelled.

UNL Extension experts will address emerging pest, disease and weed challenges, as well as fertilizer management, other production issues, industry trends, new technology in wheat genetics and market outlooks.

"Sharpening Your Production Skills for Maximum Profit" is the theme.

Pre-registration is requested, and can be made by calling 308-632-1230. The fee is $45.

Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. and the program will conclude by about 3:45 p.m.
