

With just one day in between the conclusion of the Chase County Fair and the first day of school, parents and students hardly had time to take a breath. But, classes at Chase County Schools got underway on Tuesday with a full day, and it went off pretty smoothly, said Supt. Matt Fisher. There are six, new full-time teachers on staff for the 2009-10 school year, above, front from left, Amy Walworth, K-6 music; Jeremy Vlasin, 7-12 ag, junior high science and FFA; Agnes Strand, 5-8 special education; and back from left, Lisa Krutsinger, kindergarten; Renee Hamilton, fourth grade; and Kim Bubak, second grade.
